eMergent Benefit Solutions, LLC (EBS) is pleased to announce that Arthur D. Warady has joined the company as Executive Vice President of Technology. In this capacity, Warady will play a key leadership role in the continued development and communication of EBS' technology strategy and vision. Warady will work closely with eMergent's management team to drive innovation and explore new business and technology directions.

Prior to joining EBS, Arthur Warady spent more than 20 years improving business processes with proprietary technology solutions. Leveraging his background as a CPA and practicing attorney, Arthur has addressed procedural and substantive issues in the fields of contracts, commitment management, employee benefits administration, pension plan design, personal financial planning, taxation and estate planning. His solutions have been used by employers with up to 20,000 employees, as well as large financial service organizations and service professionals. Arthur was the inventor and architect for ChoiceOne Link, a computerized eligibility, enrollment and billing system for employee health & welfare benefit plans with 1,000 or more employees. He also guided ChoiceOne Link through its founding and two subsequent mergers. Arthur was awarded a US Patent for his health and welfare benefits enrollment and billing system.

"It is an honor to have someone of Arthur's caliber join us," said Lisa Lange, President and Founder of eMergent Benefit Solutions. "His reputation is outstanding and his experience with early stage companies within the human resource outsourcing, insurance and financial IT sectors will greatly benefit us as we continue our efforts to deliver superior service and innovative technology solutions to the HR marketplace."

Arthur Warady earned his B.S.B.A degree from Northwestern University, J.D. degree from the University of Michigan (magna cum laude, Order of the Ciof) and his CPA from the University of Illinois. He is a Volunteer Board Member for the Ben Franklin Technology Partnership of Southeastern PA, Technical Advisory Committee.
